BOOKS

- 2015 No Way Out: Precarious Living in the Shadow of Poverty and Drug Dealing. Chicago: University of Chicago Press.

The book is an ethnographic study of the role drug dealing plays in a poor urban neighborhood where it is a principal occupation. Rather than viewing drug dealing, along with graffiti, vacant lots, violence, and decaying housing as signs of disorder, I argue that the local code of conduct that develops around drug dealing is ordered in ways that shape the character of the community for all residents. In this small urban space, drug dealers are not outsiders; they are long-term residents, well integrated into community life. Their work practices place requirements on behavior in public spaces that impact the whole neighborhood.

- Selected for Author Meets Critics Session at the Annual Meetings of the American Sociological Association, Seattle, Washington, 2016.
- Finalist for C. Wright Mills Book Award, Society for the Study of Social Problems 2016.
- Selected for Author Meets Critics Session at the Annual Meetings of the Eastern Sociological Society, Seattle, Washington, 2017.

- 2019 Rawls, Anne and Waverly Duck. A Nation Divided: Interaction Orders of Race and The High Cost of Tacit Racism in Everyday Life. (Forthcoming with the University of Chicago Press).

This monograph is a study of interactions between Americans who self-identify as Black and White, respectively. We argue that the expectations of everyday life differ for Black Americans, who experience what Du Bois called “Double Consciousness”. Because Blacks and Whites inhabit different Interaction Orders with distinct methods of sense making, divergent expectations lead to systematic misunderstandings across racial groups, and to the re/production of racial stereotypes, structures, and inequalities.

Books in Progress

Duck, Waverly and Devin Rutan. Steel City Mayor: Pittsburgh's Renaissance under Mayor Thomas J. Murphy.

Mayor Murphy is credited with many of the economic, political, and social changes that transformed Pittsburgh from a manufacturing hub based on iron and steel into an economic powerhouse centered on hospitals, universities, pharmaceutical firms, research centers, and tech firms. Working closely with the former Mayor, we ask: (1) How did Pittsburgh make the transition from rust belt city to vibrant urban center? (2) What was Tom Murphy's role in Pittsburgh's transformation? (3) What lessons can be learned from this achievement?

Duck, Waverly. Ethnographies: A Multicultural History of Urban Ethnography. (Under Contract with Routledge, to be completed in December 2019).

The book is a short introduction to the history, epistemology, and practice of ethnography that addresses such topics as research ethics and the notable contributions of women, queer scholars, and people of color. It also deconstructs the methods, theories, and cultures of scholarship that have alternately enhanced and blurred the contributions of ethnographic research.
